ABRAHAM LINCOLN

THE great central figure of the War of the Rebellion, the emancipator of a race, a man from the people and of the people, of striking personality and magnetism, sympathetic, kindly, yet wonderfully forceful, he stands out in the history of our country second only to the immortal Washington.

Lincoln was born February 12, 1809, and the accompanying steel plate engraving is one of a limited number published by Thorp & Martin Co. to mark the occurrence of the One Hundredth Anniversary of his birth.
